

| | | | |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|  | Human Kind–Pam Hom | | |
| sculp 6 ture | Medium–Steel | | $20,000 |
| | What do you see when you look at this sculpture? Hom hopes you will see different peoples from all over the world. She sculpted each figure to represent a different human group, then placed them on a common base. Hom hopes you will see how all the different kinds of people all share the same environment. Why do you think she wants us to think about different types of people sharing the same space? Which "figure" pleases you the most? |  | |
| | |  |  |
| | | GPS coordinates: N 47° 40' 11.8" W 122° 07' 34.3" | |

Notes _____